

LECTURES ON THE WAR.

Attention is drawn to the fact that the first of the "war lectures," organised by the University of Melbourne, will be delivered to-morrow night (Tuesday, June 15), at the Masonic Hall. The course has been arranged with the view of helping the community to understand more fully the grave issues and duties involved in the present war. The public are cordially invited, and admission is free. The full list, which is subject to future variation, is as follows:—

Tuesday, June 15.—Professor Tucker—"British and German Ideals." Professor Scott—"The Nature of the Issue."

Tuesday, June 22.—Professor Wallace—"Recent Impressions of Britain in War Time." F. W. Eggleston—"The Significance of the Empire." Archibald Strong, M.A.—"Australia and the War."

Wednesday, July 14.—Professor Osburn—"Germany's Intellectual Strength and Weakness." R. H. Garran, C.M.G.—"Trade and the War."

Wednesday, July 28.—Professor Harrison Moore—"International Relations and International Law." Maurice Blackburn, M.A.—"Socialism and the War."

Tuesday, August 10.—Colonel Hubert Fraser, R.E., Director of Military Science in the University of Sydney—"Strategy on the Western Front."

Tuesday, August 24.—Frank Tate, M.A. (Director of Education)—"Education and the War." Dr. McKeellar Stewart—"Nietzsche and the Modern German Spirit."

Wednesday, September 8.—Professor Mason—"Chemistry and the War." Professor Berry—"Remoter Aspects of the War." Professor Laby—"The Dominions and the War."

A patriotic citizen and friend of the University has been so impressed by the importance of this scheme to the public that, with the assistance of a few friends, he has generously contributed the funds necessary for its working expenses. The lecturers, of course, give their services gratuitously.
